Help Protect Bristol Bay & Cook Inlet from the Pebble Mine

The State of Alaska is accepting public comment on its revised Bristol Bay Area Plan until Monday, May 6th 2013. While the revised plan is better than the 2005 plan, it still is seriously lacking. We urgently need comments sent to dnr.bbapamend@alaska.gov from Alaska residents telling DNR to adopt the Citizen's Alternative Plan for Bristol Bay. Read More»

New Report Shows Climate Impacts On Salmon

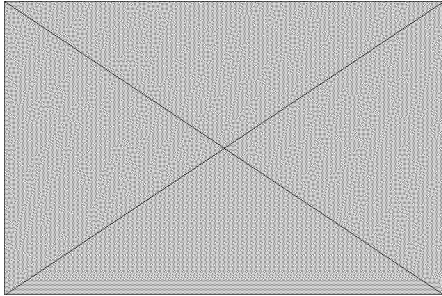

In 2012, Cook Inletkeeper and partners collected the fifth year of water temperature data for 48 non-glacial salmon streams in the Cook

Inlet watershed. The results are summarized in a new report, which includes regional maps illustrating temperature patterns across the watershed.
